Hey good local businesses – this guide is for YOU. Need money to start or grow your business? Want to make sure that money aligns with YOUR values, that your funders are committed to investing in our community and environment and not extracting from it? Look inside!

We at Sustainable Business Alliance and East Bay Express put together this guide to help you understand different types of capital and find the information you need to get mission-driven “good” local money.
ABOUT THE
SUSTAINABLE
BUSINESS ALLIANCE

This guide content was assembled by the Sustainable Business Alliance, an Oakland-based nonprofit organization that believes that in order to ensure the well-being of all people and our planet, we must all be part of the solution— not just government and nonprofits, but businesses, financial institutions and individuals.

As such, we:
- Help East Bay businesses do well and do good for the world
- Encourage community members to spend consciously and locally
- Connect good local businesses with good local money

Together we can consciously create a community where all people have access to the resources they need and are treated fairly and with respect, where our natural environment and built communities are nourished and thriving, and where people have time and freedom to pursue their passions—to enjoy art, music, food, and nature; and laugh, dance and play with their families and friends.

EAST BAY
EXPRESS

The Express is the Bay Area’s only independent, locally-owned newspaper in our region. Since 1978, the Express has provided award-winning investigative reporting, in-depth coverage of arts and culture, and critical content that helps inform our community.

Part of our mission is to “help improve the East Bay economy and environment,” which we are committed to through projects such as the Good Money Guide. We are a firm supporter of the goals of the Sustainable Business Alliance, and are co-founders and members of Oakland Grown.

To zero in on financing sources that benefit the local community, your mission, and your bottom line, this list includes investors and platforms that meet one or more of the following criteria:

• Is locally-based and committed to local reinvestment
• Adheres to a social or environmental mission
• Enables regular people to invest in their community
• Avoids investing in harmful or extractive products & activities
• Avoids unfair or misleading practices and pricing

Together, businesses and these local community providers of capital can work together to keep money recirculating, create local jobs, and achieve social and environmental goals.

If you’re interested in learning more about the topic of aligning money and mission, see the list of resources beginning on page 15.

In addition to bringing your financing in line with your values, these sources can also be great for the bottom line.

Many of them:

• Set terms and requirements to foster your smallest of enterprises
• Provide individual support and creative solutions to help growing businesses thrive
• Support borrowers who may have been rejected for traditional financing
• Let your community support you on the strength of your business idea regardless of your credit or bank balance

This guide is intended help you find welcoming options with those who are more interested in the success of your business than turning a quick profit – that are interested in everyone enjoying a triple-bottom line of people, planet, and profit.
Review the types of funding to get a sense of what fits you.

Check out listings – look at the amounts, requirements, and special focus areas of the providers in the directory to hone in on ones that might work for you. An easy place to start might be the loan size column, because you probably know about how much money you need.

Consider working with a business advisor (see “Business Advisors” on page 13) to navigate the sources that are currently available. Take this guide with you to talk through your options!

Get in touch with the providers to confirm their current offerings and explore whether they are a good fit.

Please note that while we worked to create the most current and accurate list possible at time of publishing, the information may change. Please contact providers directly for the most current information and find updates to our list at: SustainableBusinessAlliance.com/goodmoney

The guide is broken up in sections as follows:

1) Loans from Community Organizations & Institutions
2) Loans from Community Banks
3) 0% Loans from Peer-to-Peer Platforms
4) Crowdfunding - Reward/Donation-Based
5) Crowdfunding - Investment-Based
6) Angel Investors
7) Impact Investment Funds
1) LOANS: COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS & INSTITUTIONS
The main mission of these lenders is to support small and startup businesses. While the terms are still very fair, often community organizations must charge slightly higher interest rates in order to make up for the fact that they are supporting riskier (newer, less proven) businesses.
- Are often called “Alternative Lenders”
- Provide significant assistance, training and networking opportunities
- Offer a wide range of loans, from $5,000 to $5 million
- Are often certified CDFIs*
- A good option for businesses or nonprofits that
  - Have less than perfect credit history
  - Don’t qualify for traditional bank loans
  - Are looking for business advising in addition to financing

2) LOANS: COMMUNITY BANKS
These are small banks that draw deposits from and contribute back to the community through local loans
- Have an explicit commitment to local economic development
- Can be an excellent source of mid-size loans, generally from $100,000 to more than $5 million, but some offer loans as small as $10,000
- Are good for businesses with industry track records, good credit, and a clear path to repayment
- Often provide interest rates that are lower than those at community organizations
- Are often CDFIs*

3) LOANS: ZERO PERCENT MICROLENDING PLATFORMS
These are online platforms where borrowers and lenders can go to find each other and make loans
- Are also called peer-to-peer
- Are often good for entrepreneurs who
  - Have poor credit
  - Don’t have much cash
  - Need small loans ($1,000 to $10,000)
  - Have friends, family and fans that will loan them some money
- It’s still a loan – your friends and family will need to be paid back!

*ACRONYM ALERT
CDFI (Community Development Financial Institution): an entity certified and supported by the Federal government for its significant community development activity. Look for the CDFI certification in the right column of the listings.
4) CROWDFUNDING: REWARD/DONATION-BASED
These platforms allow an entrepreneur to solicit donations from the public using online tools.

- Are donations, not loans – no repayment required
- Usually the business gives away rewards to their supporters, like products, naming rights, and vouchers for experiences
- Good for entrepreneurs who
  - Can tell a compelling story about their business or product using social media, photos, and/or video
  - Have large networks of friends, family, and fans who really want to help the business achieve its goals and aren’t concerned with getting paid back

5) CROWDFUNDING: INVESTING
Crowd investing allows a broad range of supporters – regular people, not just wealthy “accredited” investors – to invest directly in a business, by providing a loan or an equity investment.

- Useful for a business that intends to pay a financial return to investors, but not as much or as fast as typical venture capital funds
- Can build immediate loyal customers – the investors
- Allow regular people to invest in local businesses
- Are a good option for businesses that have audiences with a passion for their community or field – boosters or local foodies, for example
- Opens a wider net than donations because you can bring in people you don’t necessarily know who care about your business and are looking for a return
- Is a great way for community members to invest in and be connected and committed to a business
- Legal costs and other expenses will likely start at $5,000
- Good for businesses interested in raising $100,000 or more

There are two kinds of crowd investing:

Direct Public Offering (DPO)
Similar to donation crowdfunding, entrepreneurs announce an opportunity to invest in them, usually through a public campaign and website.

Private Placement
Business offers the investment privately to people that know the business.

- Good option if the business owner thinks that he/she can raise enough money by asking his/her network of close friends, family and community members directly
- Have a less onerous and less expensive legal process than DPOs
- In California, businesses can have up to 35 investors that don’t meet any wealth or income requirements

TIP: YOU STILL GOTTA PAY IT BACK
Just a quick note here... You might be thinking that because these funders care about the community, they will accept lower rates or can tolerate a business not paying them back. That’s not the case. In order to stay in business and keep doing their work, they gotta pay their own bills.

If they just gave away money, they’d close their doors pretty fast. The beauty of these mission-driven funders is not cheap rates. It’s taking risks and being creative. They take the time to understand your business and when they believe in you and your mission, they take a risk to fund you when others wouldn’t.
6) ANGEL INVESTING
These are accredited investors – high-net-worth individuals — whom the law considers better able to afford the risk of a small business investment. You can get funding from them without as much legal work as other investment funds.

The guide lists groups of angel investors that work together to find and vet investment opportunities.
- Are good for businesses who
  - Expect to provide a high return to investors
  - Have a cutting-edge or compelling product or service that people are inspired to invest in
  - Do not have cash flow right away to start making loan payments
  - Interested in business advice and mentorship from investors

7) IMPACT INVESTMENT FUNDS
These bring together many socially- and environmentally-responsible businesses into a fund that higher-wealth individuals can invest in.
- Investors are often looking for competitive, high-return ventures that pursue a double- or triple-bottom line
- Energy and health startups, information technology firms, and sustainable food enterprises often catch the eye of these investors

SOME SIMPLE GUIDELINES

Think about community bank and organizational lenders if you...
- Need between $10,000 and $5 million
- Have immediate positive cash flow or a secondary source of income
- Can make equal monthly payments
- Have ‘the 5 C’s’ of credit:
  1) Capacity – You have the capacity to pay back the loan AND all of your other bills.
  2) Capital – You personally put money in the business – you showed commitment and have skin in the game
  3) Collateral – You have something that you can use to pay back a loan if you run out of cash (real estate, office or manufacturing equipment, or your accounts receivable and inventory)
  4) Conditions – Your business is operating at the right time and place to be successful
  5) Character – You are trustworthy and have a good reputation, and in this case, a social mission

Think about donation-based crowdfunding & peer-to-peer lending models if you...
- Have a great idea but not a lot of money
- Have time and connections to sell your idea via online marketing or to your local community
- Need $1,000 to $25,000

Think about equity financing (Angel, Impact, Crowd Investing) if you...
- Need $100,000 or more
- Will provide a return to investors when you produce revenues

Zero in on Angel and Impact Investing if you...
- Anticipate fast growth and high return
- Would be comfortable selling your business after high growth
- Welcome decision-making input from your investors
QUIZ: IS CROWD-BASED FINANCING RIGHT FOR MY BUSINESS?

1) Have a lot of people encouraged you to start this business?
   a. Yes, I already have people I know rooting for the business
   b. Yes, once people hear about it they think it’s a good idea
   c. I’m not sure/I haven’t really told people about it

2) How comfortable are you asking people for money?
   a. Very comfortable! I’d ask anyone for money for my business if that’s what it takes
   b. Not so comfortable. I’d ask my own community for money – people I already know
   c. Hmmmm. I’ll ask strangers, but not my family or community!
   d. Not a chance

3) In your existing network, can you think of 20 people who would be willing to give you money for your business, even as low as $20?
   a. Yeah, I can think of more than 20!
   b. I think so, let me get a pen
   c. I can’t think of specific people, but I still think it’s a valuable idea

4) Is there a community of people who are passionate about what your business is going to do?
   a. Yep! The _______ community (try to think of a specific label, or two or three)
   b. Yeah, people who buy __________ would likely want to buy my product
   c. I can’t think of a label or description. Anyone would like it!

5) Do you have the resources to create good marketing collateral (photos, video, descriptions) of your business to “sell” it to potential funders online?
   a. Yes, I have (or can get) enough money or resources to make a video, take some photos and set up a simple website
   b. I could probably swing it on a shoestring. My cousin is a great photographer.
   c. I don’t have money for my business yet. that’s why I need the crowdfunding!

GIVE YOURSELF

3 points for each A answer
2 points for each B answer
1 point for each C of D answer

Total up your score and see answers on next page.
12-15 POINTS: AND THE CROWD GOES WILD
Every A answer is one piece of the puzzle – and you have a lot of pieces! You may be in a good position to run a successful, public-facing crowd campaign. Your next step is to check out your options and take a hard look at the requirements and recommendations of each model – they’ll give you an idea if there is something you need to work on before you go public.

In our Crowdfunding section on page 16, you’ll see a couple of sites that specialize in a particular subject area, such as food businesses. If you have a highly specialized business, such as in a technology field, you should search for a site dedicated to your niche market. Be sure to check out the Crowd Investing and 0% Interest Microlending sections – these also include models for getting financing from the public.

9-11 POINTS: PUT SOME MUSCLE INTO IT
Most of the B answers above reflect that you have some more thinking to do about whether a crowd campaign is right for you. Is your startup or expansion compelling enough that you talk to people about it at parties? Is there a clear mission? How do friends respond? Could they become your crowdfunders? That’s how these campaigns are most successful – based on how compelling your message is about your business, and how many people you can get to listen to you.

You should have a clear idea of the market for your business and a profile of your potential funders drawn up – so grab a pen and paper and get scribbling! Check out the requirements and best practices of the platforms we have listed, and work backwards from there to make sure you have your ducks in a row.

5-8 POINTS: NOT READY FOR THE CROWD
Many of the C answers are red flags for crowd-based efforts. Crowdfunding relies on existing social networks, so if you’re unable to ask your community for money for your business, probably other sources of funds will be better for you. Also, your campaign doesn’t have to be slick, but it does take some resources to put together a compelling story about your business – remember, you are “selling” the idea of your business to the potential funders.

If you don’t have much cash saved up or a lot of time to reach out to your friends, family and community many times in many formats, you should think about a smaller first wave of fundraising, such as asking friends and family for a small loan (you’d pay the money back after the campaign) or joining a lending circle to amass a small amount for your uses. You can find local lending circles in the Zero Interest Microlending section of our guide. Depending on your business experience and model, you might also find a loan from a community organization possible.
LENDING PLATFORMS WITH SMALL BUSINESS IN MIND
